

This was sheer inspiration. It just came to me one day and I tried it and it worked. I'm going to explain how to do this, 'cause I know you are going to ask!

Take a papertowel and fold it in half from corner to corner so you have a doubled triangle. Stamp the bunny face with black ink about 1 inch above the fold in the center. Unfold and put the face down. Fill with your choice of candy.

Now bring the left and right corners up, carefully gathering them to form the ears. Take a white pipecleaner and wrap around the base of the ears in a figure eight, gently tugging and twisting them to face them forward.

Now bring the top corner (back of the head) up and over the top of the head, over the pipe cleaner and tuck the tip underneath. Then bring the bottom corner (where the face is) up and pull it between the ears and over the pipe cleaner. Put a little bit of mono or a glue dot on the tip of the corner and stick it to the back of the head.

Now use some pink pastel to brush on the pink cheeks and inside the ears!
